

Each year, the faculty assembles in the presence of the trustees and officers of administration to recognize and honor their colleagues.

In equal measure, the faculty salutes our benefactors who have established endowed chairs, and in doing so have supported the academy in the finest of traditions.

HONORS TO BE CONFERRED

Valentine Mott Founders Award

Fiona B. Druckenmiller

Trustee, NYU Langone Medical Center Board of Trustees

Fiona Druckenmiller has been an NYU Langone Medical Center Trustee since 2006 and joined the NYU Board of Trustees in September 2016. She is the owner of FD Gallery, a boutique on the Upper East Side specializing in rare and vintage jewelry and objets d'art, and was previously a portfolio manager with Dreyfus Corporation. Ms. Druckenmiller is an honorary trustee and former vice chair of the American Museum of Natural History and is on the leadership council of the New York Stem Cell Foundation. She is also a director of the Druckenmiller Foundation and Bloomberg Philanthropies.

Fiona Druckenmiller received her Bachelor of Science degree with honors from Barnard College, and received her MBA degree from NYU Leonard N. Stern School of Business. She is married to Stanley Druckenmiller and they have three daughters, Tess, Hannah and Sarah, a 2016 graduate of NYU School of Medicine. The Druckenmillers are lead supporters of the Neuroscience Institute at NYU Langone and also endowed the Druckenmiller Professorship in Emergency Medicine.

Master Clinician

David E. Cohen, MD, MPH

Charles C. and Dorothea E. Harris Professor and Vice Chair for Clinical Affairs, The Ronald O. Perelman Department of Dermatology

Dr. Cohen is the Charles C. and Dorothea E. Harris Professor and vice chair for clinical affairs for the Ronald O. Perelman Department of Dermatology of NYU School of Medicine and leads the section on occupational and environmental dermatology.

Dr. Cohen received his MD from SUNY at Stony Brook and MPH from Columbia University. He served his internship at Columbia Presbyterian Medical Center, and two residencies, one in dermatology at NYU School of Medicine and the other in occupational and environmental medicine at Columbia's Mailman School of Public Health. Since joining NYU's faculty in 1994, Dr. Cohen's work has focused on dermatologic reactions to various chemicals and environmental factors.

Dr. Cohen has served on many government panels over the years. He was chosen by the Institute of Medicine of the National Academy of Science in 2010 to study the federal response to health issues arising from the Gulf of Mexico oil spill. He later received funding in 2011 from the U.S. Center for Disease Control to develop a bioterrorism-preparedness plan for cutaneous anthrax. He has also worked with the National Institution for Occupational Health and Safety to discover new workplace allergens and ways to remediate them. Locally, he consulted with the New York City Department of Health to evaluate dermatologic effects after the World Trade Center attack in 2001.

Dr. Cohen is currently president-elect of the American Dermatological Association, and has served as president of the American Contact Dermatitis Society, the Dermatology Section of the New York Academy of Medicine, and the New York Dermatological Association. He was a founding board member of the American Acne and Rosacea society, and led the development of guidelines of care for individuals with latex allergy for the American Academy of Dermatology. He has authored over 95 articles and 18 book chapters, and lectured nationally and internationally on a variety of dermatologic disorders.

He has been married for over 25 years and is the proud father of two daughters. He also supports his home community and served on his local Board of Education for nine years, including two as president.

Master Educator

Molly E. Poag, MD

Clinical Associate Professor of Psychiatry

Director of Medical Student Education in Psychiatry

Molly Poag, MD is a clinical associate professor of psychiatry at NYU School of Medicine (NYUSOM), and director of medical student education in psychiatry.

Dr. Poag earned her undergraduate degree in English from Georgetown University in 1983. She received her medical degree from Weill Cornell Medical College in 1987, and completed residency training in psychiatry at Columbia University College of Physicians and Surgeons and New York State Psychiatry Institute, where she was also on faculty.

Dr. Poag has been devoted to medical student education since her own residency training, being awarded the Senior Resident Teaching Award at Columbia P&S. In 2010 she joined NYUSOM and directs and teaches in both the pre-clinical and clinical medical student programs. She has contributed to the C21 Curriculum, collaborating with numerous departments to create novel teaching tools including on-line modules, interdisciplinary electives, and Simulation Center activities. She also teaches in the psychiatry residency program on Residents as Educators supporting the strong integration of the medical student and residency education programs. In addition, Dr. Poag has been involved in continuing medical education on anxiety disorders, depression in the medically ill, depression and heart disease, and physician health. One of her major goals is educating medical students in the mechanisms by which mental health impacts physical health status, and the frequent bi-directional relationship. Prior to her position at NYUSOM, Dr. Poag was chair of the Department of Psychiatry and vice president of the Medical Board at Lenox Hill Hospital.

Dr. Poag has received numerous awards in education, including the American Psychiatric Association's Nancy C.A. Roeske Award for Excellence in Medical Student Education, and the ADMSEP Innovations in Medical Education Poster Award. Her writing has been primarily on anxiety and anxiety disorders in publications for medical students, as well as co-editing an on-call guide for residents. She is a member of the American College of Psychiatrists and has maintained a small clinical practice for the last 25 years. She and her husband, Matthew Pearson, live in Manhattan and have two grown sons, Graham and Harry.

Master Scientist

Richard W. Tsien, DPhil

Director of the Neuroscience Institute

Chair of the Department of Neuroscience and Physiology

Druckenmiller Professor of Neuroscience

Scientific Director, Marlene and Paolo Fresco Institute for Parkinson's and Movement Disorders

Dr. Tsien, inaugural director of the Neuroscience Institute at NYU Langone Medical Center, has fostered the careers of many excellent neuroscientists over four decades as a teacher at Yale and Stanford Universities, before joining NYU in 2011. A cardiac electrophysiologist by training, Dr. Tsien and his colleagues now focus on the dynamics of the synapse and topics ranging from the discovery of calcium channels that trigger neurotransmitter release, to understanding how postsynaptic activity controls nuclear transcription. He has clarified how ion channels are modulated by transmitters, and in turn, regulate intracellular signaling. His group has developed new optical approaches to peer into single vesicle fusion events and the workings of multiple synaptic inputs in networks. The work has relevance to disease states such as pain, epilepsy, autism and schizophrenia and their amelioration by therapeutic agents.

Dr. Tsien received both an undergraduate and graduate degree in electrical engineering from the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. He was a Rhodes Scholar, graduating with a doctorate in biophysics from Oxford University, England.

Dr. Tsien is a member of the National Academy of Sciences, the Institute of Medicine, and the Academia Sinica. His past honors include the Cole Medal, the Palade Medal, the Cartwright Prize, the Axelrod Prize, the 2014 Bard Lectureship, the 2014 Annual Review Prize and the 2014 Gerard Prize.

In 2015, Dr. Tsien was named the inaugural Scientific Director of the Marlene and Paolo Fresco Institute for Parkinson's and Movement Disorders.
